About Us

The Leaf Writers' Magazine was first published in print and online in Spring 2010, with the view of being a practical guide and lively read for all writing and literature enthusiasts. Each issue focuses on a couple of writing practices, genres or themes, and sets well-known authors alongside those just starting out. Seamlessly blending the heart and soul of a literary quarterly with the guidance and advice of a creative writing course, Leaf aims to bridge the gap between the beginners and the professionals of the writing world. The magazine also serves as a directory for the latest literary courses, reading groups, festivals, events and publishing opportunities for writers.

Our Audience

The Leaf Writers' Magazine reaches over 2000 readers, including every creative writing tutor in the UK. Our audience includes members of writing groups, creative writing students and writers of all ages. The magazine has a well established subscription and distribution network, which includes central London. The magazine is printed with a sturdy cover and won't be thrown away meaning your advert will be read over and over again!
